Drop all litigation against Microsoft. This company is doing a good job in the market and is much more valuable to the, economy, balance of payments, competition world wide and the people of the US than all their competitors combined.

This litigation is only benefiting the trial lawyers and other special interest groups that stand to gain from this furthermore the judges in this case are not have the expertise to properly judge this. Remember that Microsoft is not only in competition with American companies but are in competition world wide.
